BRILLIANT CONCERT BY ANGELI CORTESE

Once more proving themselves musicians of the most accomplished sort, Angelo and Joseph Cortese delighted their hearers at Monday night's benefit concert for the Goodfellows fund. Assisting were Burl Grant, Mrs. J. L. McKee and Mrs. Frank Sturm, who made the evening a complete and artistic success.

Angelo Cortese's ability on the harp little additional can be written. He is an artist of truly wonderful technique whose understanding of his harp and whose personality enabled him to render Monday night several beautiful numbers in an irreproachable manner. To his playing there was a fire and verve that but seldom is reached for Memphis audiences. His efforts were all too short.

The assurance of a master is readily seen in Joseph Cortese's violin efforts. Monday night he again gave evidence of the finer touch of fluent fingers that evidences his study under the greatest teachers. Especially in the rendering of the Rosary, as arranged by Kreisler, were his tones wonderfully full and pure. Two interpretations of Praeludium assured his evening's success.

Agreeably surprising was the performance of Burl Grant. He sang at the outset ballad numbers, admirably adapted to the blackface turn he attempted. Mr. Grant sang in a manner that truly surprised his friends, displaying a feeling of adoration in his love ditties and just enough of the dandy in his coloring of his negro ballad.

"O, Holy Night," as given by Mrs. McKee with Angelo and Joseph Cortese, captivated the audience. In especially good voice, Mrs. McKee reached the upper notes with the ease and assurance of an artist of understanding. Extraordinarily clear and bell like were her thrilling notes in "Villanelle."

As accompanist Mrs. Frank Sturm instilled an eloquent most satisfying feeling into her piano playing. There is not a Goodfellow who does not extend more than the ordinary thanks to these artists for their contributions.

CHURCH TO CO-OPERATE IN WORLD LIQUOR FIGHT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22. (Sp.)—Co-operation of the church forces of America in the present campaign of the Antislavery league for national and world-wide prohibition was asked today by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, who reported the following resolution just adopted by the temperance federal council, representing all of the great Protestant denominations of this country:

"We rejoice in the steady growth of the world movement against alcoholism. The labors of every mission board are hampered and often times nullified by the operations of the liquor traffic. The workers for world prohibition are the most efficient allies of the missionaries. The United States, as the first great prohibition nation of the world, should of necessity take a leading part in extending the fruits of sobriety to the greatest possible contribution which we can make to world prohibition is effective enforcement of our national prohibition law. We pledge to prohibition workers in other countries of the world our hearty co-operation with them in every proper way to free their own people from the curse of the liquor traffic, and especially will we aid them by endeavoring to prove that national prohibition can be enforced in our own country."

Bishop Cannon said that the Methodist church alone has set aside more than $50,000,000 for missionary work at home and abroad, and that this investment and those of other great mission boards should be made safe by the removal of the liquor traffic.

MISSISSIPPI WOULD CONTROL DISEASE

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 22. (Sp.)—Petitions are pouring in at the office of the state board of health from social and business organizations throughout the state, urging the adoption of plans for the prevention of and control of social diseases.

The petitions are addressed to Gov. Russell and to the legislature, and urge the appropriation of $20,000 to fund for this purpose in the next session. A similar amount from the federal government may be available. "Keep the boys clean" is the slogan adopted by the health authorities for their campaign in the state.

CINEMA OF CRIME REFLECTED UPON POLICE BLOTTER

Monday was a tough day on rural visitors. E. B. Beasley, Route 3, Memphis, was "city slicked" out of $5 by a North Third street citizen, while F. Hyatt, Route 6, Memphis, went into a barber shop and while being shaved lost his overcoat.

When M. A. Suddoth, 1327 Vinton, felt an exploring hand in his pocket Monday night, on a Vance avenue car, he grasped with the supposed pick-pocket. The car was standing still with gates open, and they toppled to the street. The "dip" escaped.

Memphis thieves have no respect for Uncle Sam's ground. One of the gentry seized a milk fur piece from the neck of the daughter of Mrs. W. H. Fisher, 480 South Parkway, Monday afternoon while the young woman was in the postoffice. He made his getaway.

J. T. Morgan has been robbed of an Exide storage battery, stolen, he told police, from his garage Monday night.

Overcoat lovers who reported losses to police Tuesday include M. C. Byrne, 1116 Exchange building, and Walter B. Jones, 510 Beale avenue.

Mrs. Annie Mote, 2208 Union avenue, told police Tuesday that someone had stolen a brown muff from her.

TO VOTE ROAD BONDS.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 22. (Sp.)—A bond issue favoring the expenditure of an additional $75,000 on highways of the Jackson vicinity will be voted upon Tuesday.
